ORDERED, that the Motion is denied as to the approval of use funds for $450 in expenses per month for entertainment, clubs, recreation, newspapers, magazines, and books to be outside the ordinary course of business and not shown to be an exercise of reasonable business judgment; and it is

FURTHER ORDERED, that Debtors' use of cash on hand and the Debtors' postpetition income and/or earnings to pay the expenses and/or make the deductions and/or withholdings described in in Schedules I and J attached to the declaration filed in support of the Motion are neither approved nor disapproved. Use of estate funds in the ordinary course of business does not need court approval. Recently, a district court in Maryland observed that "some bankruptcy courts have found that individuals operating as Chapter 11 debtors-in-possession may use estate proerpty on personal expenses are in the 'ordinary course' rather than unusual or extraordinary." In re Massenburg, 554 B.R. 796, 755 (D. Md. 2016), citing, In re Seely, 492 B.R. 284, 290 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013) (Bluebond, J.) and In re Bradley, 185 B.R. 7, 8-9 (Bankr. W.D.N.Y. 1995). Judge Bluebond in her opinion in Seely stated that an individual Chapter 11 debtor may use estate funds without court approval to pay for living expenses so long as such expenses were in the "ordinary course." 492 B.R. at 290. However, ordinary course means ordinary course. See In re Dant & Russell, Inc., 853 F.2d 700, 704-705 (9th Cir. 2008).

Morevoer, if the use of estate funds to pay Debtors' living expenses is not in the "ordinary course," such use is subject to the general requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 363(b)(1) and applicable case law. Id. That is, if the proposed use of estate funds for personal living expenses is not within the ordinary course of business, a debtor-in-possesion (or trustee) may use, sell or lease estate property only after notice and a hearing and upon a showing of exercise of reasonable business judgment for such use outside the ordinary course of business. See, In re Mark Vincent Kaplan, No. 2:15-bk-16187 RK Chapter 11 (Bankr. C.D. Cal., order filed and entered on June 11, 2015) (Kwan, J.), citing, 3 March, Ahart and Shapiro, California Practice Guide: Bankruptcy, ¶¶ 14:75 and 14:595 at 14(I)-6 and 14(I) at 49 (2014), citing inter alia, In re Lionel Corp., 727 F.2d. 1063, 107 (2nd Cir. 1983) and In re Ernest Home Ctr., Inc., 209 B.R. 974, 979 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 1997).

Case 2:17-bk-17761-RK Doc 33 Filed 08/18/17 Entered 08/18/17 15:55:23 Main Document Page 3 of 3

This court in In re Kaplan noted that in In re Villalobos, 2011 WL 4485793 (9th Cir. BAP 2011) (unpublished memorandum opinion), the Bankrputcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit reversed the order of the bankruptcy court approving the individual Chapter 11 debtor's personal living expenses on grounds that the bankruptcy court failed to issue sufficient findings of facts and conclusions of law to support approval or disapproval of the expenses in the debtor's proposed budget as well as to support the approval of the debtor's budget nunc pro tunc to the petition date. In re Mark Vincent Kaplan, slip op. at *4, citing, In re Villalobos, 2011 WL 4485793, slip op. at **8-9 and no. 13. The Bankruptcy Appelate Panel of the Ninth Circuit in In re Villalobos stated: "[g]iven the uncertainty in this area of the law [i.e., post-BAPCPA], the identification of the proper Bankruptcy Code section for approval or personal expenses of individual Chapter 11 debtors, it is all the more important for the bankruptcy court to articulate the legal rule being applied and the explicit findings of fact that support the legal rule." Id., slip op. at *9. Boilerplate recitals in a form motion by movants are not sufficient to assist the court in meeting this standard.

In the instant case, other than the denial of approval of the $450 for enterntainment expenses per month which the court finds to be not in the ordinary course of business, and not shown to be the exercise of reasonable business judgment, the court does not approve nor disapprove the personal expenses of the Chapter 11 debtors.
